Allergen Declaration

Regulation (EU) 1169/2011¹ on the provision of food information to consumers contains provisions for the declaration of certain food allergens on food products to the consumer. The allergic substances/products listed in Annex II of the regulation must always be labelled when present in a food product. The allergen declaration applies to all foods, including food supplements.

The table below indicates the absence (No = below LoQ)³ / presence (Yes) of the allergenic compounds as listed in the aforementioned legislation.

For complete transparency the table indicates as well the presence of derived products for which allergen labelling is specifically exempted by the legislation. In that case, the substance is disclosed under the "Comments" column and marked with².
